CDM Regulations - is your Construction Health and Safety Manual updated?

The Construction Health and Safety Manual published by Construction Industry Publications (CIP), has now been updated in line with the new CDM 2007 Regulations.

The industry's leading manual, endorsed by the Health and Safety Executive, is updated twice a year. For those customers daunted by the task of updating their manuals, CIP have launched a new 'Pick-Up Service' which arranges to collect manuals, update them with the latest set of amendments and send them back.

Shelley Atkinson-Frost, Construction Confederation Director of Health and Safety said: "CDM 2007 means a change for everyone involved in a construction project, and the Construction Health and Safety Manual provides guidance for all dutyholders and on all sizes of project, on the CDM 2007 Regulations. The challenge for all companies involved in construction is keeping up to date with legislation and the manual is an invaluable source of current information on CDM 2007. This is why it is crucial for all those using the manual that it is kept updated."

The subscription based manual is accurate and topical to the latest health and safety legislation and updated twice yearly by an editorial panel of health and safety practitioners working for leading UK construction companies. For one initial outlay and an annual subscription, contractors have an up-to-date, invaluable reference guide to health and safety in the construction industry.

The manual is available as a hardcopy in two volumes, CD-Rom in a pdf format, and now online at www.cip-bluebook.com. Prices start from £210, and annual subscriptions from £84. Email: sales@cip-books.com. For full details and costs of the pick-up service or to renew lapsed subscriptions call 0870 078 4400.
